

Talking Points

Certification Information:

- The American College of Medical Practice Executives (ACMPE) develops and implements national standards for competency in medical practice management and provides comprehensive credentialing for MGMA through Board Certification and Fellowship programs.
- The Certified Medical Practice Executive (CMPE) credential has set the industry standard for more than 57 years as the most significant benchmark of ability and experience.
- Developed by medical practice administrators, board certification evaluates and validates your knowledge and skills in key competencies that drive the success of your practice.
- The CMPE community includes 6,600 of your peers working to elevate medical care delivery.
- For medical practice professionals with three or more years of experience, certification is the next step in professional and personal development.
- Requirements to apply for certification:
 - Must have documentation of two years of healthcare management experience, including a minimum of six months in a supervisory role.
 - Pay a one-time $250 application fee.
 - Must be a national MGMA member (must continue membership to maintain credential)

Promotion Details:

- MGMA wants to help you advance your success with board certification. To help you take the next step, MGMA is offering your first year of national membership for free!
- Simply apply for board certification, and once you are approved for the program your free one year national membership will begin.

Qualifiers:

1. Must be a current MGMA State member.
2. Cannot be a current national MGMA member.
3. Must be a qualified applicant for certification, application must be accepted to receive free one year national MGMA membership.

Once the member is a part of the certification program, either a nominee or credentialed member, they must continue their national membership with MGMA in order to keep their status. Regular annual membership fees apply to these members after the first free year expires. Offer not valid combined with other offers or incentives. Offer only available through December 31, 2015.